Hines places his work within an international context as Gill's identification with the modern movement developed his work evolved from the influence of the east coast shingle style and Wright's midwest prairie style to become closer in spirit to the work of the Austrian Adolf Loos. Gill and Loos were both admired by the second generation modernists Rudolph Schindler and Richard Neutra who studied under Loos in Vienna and learned from Gill in Los Angeles. Hines also explores the social dimensions of Gill's work.

Traditionally the Reformation has been viewed as responsible for the rupture of the medieval order and the foundation of modern society. Recently historians have challenged the stereotypical model of cataclysm and demonstrated that the religion of Tudor England was full of both continuities and adaptations of traditional liturgy, ritual, and devotion.
