university it's time for a new approach to help students engage more fully with comparative politics by elevating all the components of identity as core elements of any political system. Lisa Baglione's understanding of comparative politics helps students better appreciate the lived realities of people around the world. The book puts issues of race, gender, ethnicity, and religion in context, encouraging students to think critically about world regions and individual countries through the lens of current issues like social justice movements and the COVID-19 pandemic. Throughout the book, Baglione empowers students to be active learners in this sometimes daunting subject by engaging them in important questions, grounding them in foundational concepts like geography, and helping them make personal connections. The Global Studies series is designed to provide comprehensive background information and selected world press articles on the regions and countries of the world. This edition of Global Studies: Islam and the Muslim World is a mini encyclopedia on the subject. The preface maintains that we are living in a globally interdependent world in which it is imperative for the non-Muslim world to understand the faith of 1.3 billion Muslims who live all over the world. Part I comprises two chapters. Chapter 1 is a timeline of the momentous events and influential Muslims that have shaped Islamic civilization, 570–1605 CE. Chapter 2, "Understanding Islam: Muslims, Islamism, and Anti-Americanism," comprises sections on the fundamentals of Islam, Islamism, myths and misconceptions about Islam and Muslims, as well as Islamophobia in the West and anti-Westernism/anti-Americanism in the Muslim world. Chapter 2 also has several informative boxes and tables that present vitally important matters pertaining to Islam and Islamism at a glance: the two boxes are the ninety-nine names of God and sensational events in the media about Islam and Muslims; the six tables in the chapter are: Sunnis and Shi'as as a comparison of Islam's two major sects; a comparison of Islam, Judaism, and Christianity; Jesus and Muhammad, founders of the world's two largest religions; Islam and the Nation of Islam; a comparative overview of revolutionary Islamists and Muslim secularists; a succinct comparison; and a comparison of revolutionary Islamists and progressive Islamists. Part II comprises informative country reports for the fifty-seven member states that represent the Muslim world's interests through the Organization of Islamic Conference (OIC). Part III provides readers with world press articles on various aspects of the world of Islam. This book also provides readers with a list of annotated internet sites on Islam, in addition, a list of articles and books on Islam and the Muslim world, a selected glossary of key terms, and a comprehensive and easy-to-access index are provided.

A sweeping history of Islam and the West from the seventh century to today, Europe and the Islamic world sheds much needed light on the shared roots of Islamic and Western cultures and on the richness of their inextricably intertwined histories, refuting once and for all the misguided notion of a clash of civilizations between the muslim world and europe in this landmark book three eminent historians bring to life the complex and tumultuous relations between genoans and tunisians alexandrians and the people of constantinople catalans and maghrebis the myriad groups and individuals whose stories reflect the common cultural intellectual and religious heritage of europe and islam since the seventh century when the armies of constantinople and medina fought for control of syria and palestine there has been ongoing contact between the muslim world and the west this sweeping history vividly recounts the wars and the crusades the alliances and diplomacy commerce and the slave trade technology transfers and the intellectual and artistic exchanges here readers are given an unparalleled introduction to key periods and events including the muslim conquests the collapse of the byzantine empire the commercial revolution of the medieval mediterranean the intellectual and cultural achievements of muslim spain the crusades and spanish reconquest the rise of the ottomans and their conquest of a third of europe european colonization and decolonization and the challenges and promise of this entwined legacy today as provocative as it is groundbreaking this book describes this shared history in all its richness and diversity revealing how ongoing encounters between europe and islam have profoundly shaped both today s new media including fax machines satellite television and the internet and new uses of older media audio and video cassettes cinema pulp fiction the telephone and the press are dramatically reshaping politics and culture in muslim societies exploited by grassroots and other populist groups new media have fostered pluralism and encouraged the development of new public spheres new ways of interpreting islam and new community networks both in muslim majority states and elsewhere small and alternative media have been closely associated with educated muslims searching for new directions and identities new media in the muslim world considers the social organisation of communication and the changing social and political landscape in which different media operate throughout the middle east and beyond drawing on a wide variety of topics from egyptian film turkish web sites and african american muslim pamphlets to bangladeshi muslim bodice rippers and indonesian legal reasoning these lively essays offer fresh perspectives on how muslims have adapted local and international media to communicate independently from official governments and mainstream religion fresh insights on the extent to which today s new media have transcended local and state boundaries and worked to reform notions of gender authority justice and politics in muslim societies emerge from this provocative book
